"Our 2021 cohort were part of a unique global community. Despite immense challenges for international mobility, so many made the journey to join us in person, bringing vibrant life to our campus. We look forward to welcoming you to LSE for Summer School 2022."

Baroness Minouche Shafik
Director of LSE

Welcome to LSE Summer School

"LSE Summer School 2021 was a huge success in challenging times, with over 2,400 students representing 90 nationalities studying in London and online. We now look forward to delivering a 2022 Summer School in the spirit of our long history.

Since 1989, students from all around the world have joined us to complement their home degree and earn credit, or take on a challenge and learn something new from our extensive range of courses that draw on the unrivalled quality of teaching at LSE. This is the spirit of LSE Summer School. To learn from our world-class faculty. To experience the global city of London, making lifelong friends and connections. To challenge yourself. To experience an unforgettable moment in your life, with inspiring people.

I am especially pleased to announce the continuation of our Academic Director's Scholarships, launched in 2021, supporting students who may not otherwise be able to join our incredible international festival of learning and connections.

We hope to welcome you in person next summer!"

Professor Wim Van der Stede
Academic Director of LSE Summer School

Professor Van der Stede is the CIMA Professor of Accounting and Financial Management and Head of the Department of Accounting at LSE.

Wim has been a prolific author of numerous academic and practitioner articles, a leading textbook on Management Control Systems, and teaching cases used in classrooms around the world. He has won several awards, including American Accounting Association (AAA) awards for notable contributions to management accounting research, education, and service in his field.

Wim has served as Director for the AAA and President of its Management Accounting Section. He also chaired the Publications Committee and the Doctoral Colloquium of the European Accounting Association. He is currently the Editor-in-Chief of Management Accounting Research and regularly appears at global academic and practitioner conferences as a speaker.

Professional Skills

“Soft skills are an increasingly important element of a well-rounded graduate. In a rapidly changing working environment teams must quickly adapt. Employers are looking for graduates who can show resilience, flexibility, communication skills and teamwork.

Standout graduates can clearly articulate how the skills they have developed during their studies can translate into the workplace. Being able to knit together an interesting narrative that illustrates your values and aspirations will help prospective employers get a sense of who you are and the value you will bring to their team.”

Lizzie Darlington
Director of LSE Careers

Three ways LSE Summer School enhances your professional skills:

- 1 The Summer School experience includes workshops that give you the opportunity to develop the skills to thrive as you take the first steps in your career.
- 2 Employers want to see how you have invested in your personal development. Attending Summer School shows that you have taken the time to do another course, building networks and learning from an international cohort.
- 3 As one of the world's best social science universities, LSE exposes you to different perspectives – from faculty and peers alike – you'll learn practical solutions to global problems, based on our world-leading research.

“The CV and Cover Letter workshops were extremely useful. These practical sessions, led by leading experts, taught us how to showcase our skills to future employers.”

Ruiqi Wei
University of Oklahoma, USA

These additional programmes comprise workshops to help you develop your job search strategy, understand key industries, grow digital and data skills, and better understand yourself in the context of your future career.

Campus Life

At Summer School you can benefit from the same first-class facilities and services as a full-time LSE student.

LSE is based on one campus and many of the streets around us are pedestrianised, making the campus feel like a real community.

We are in central London near to the River Thames, Covent Garden and Theatrelend, the Royal Courts of Justice and many other London sights.

From the bustling Saw Swee Hock Student Centre with its student pub, nightclub and roof terrace, to the brand-new Centre Building's state-of-the-art classrooms and study areas, we know you'll feel right at home here.

And at the heart of campus sits Lincoln's Inn Fields, gardens which have provided a tranquil oasis in the middle of the city since 1445.

"I've been amazed by the facilities here. All the buildings are close by and there are plenty of cafés and social spaces around for you to study or just relax."

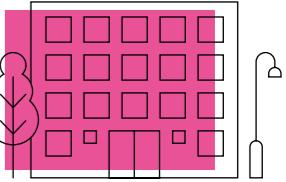

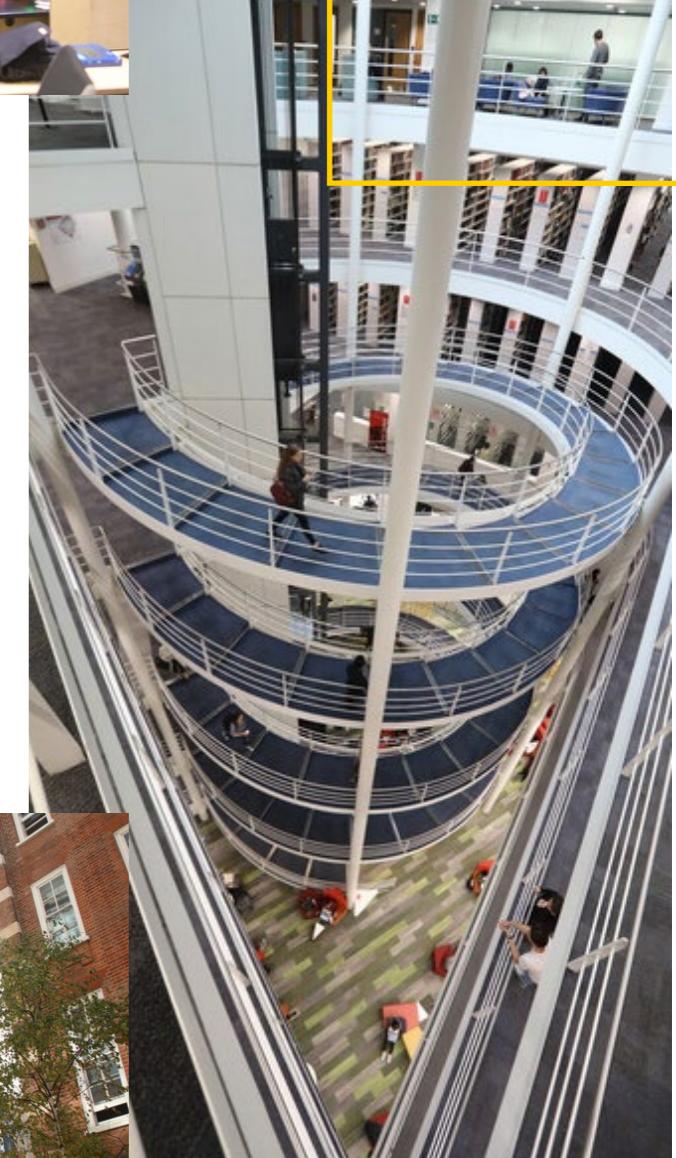

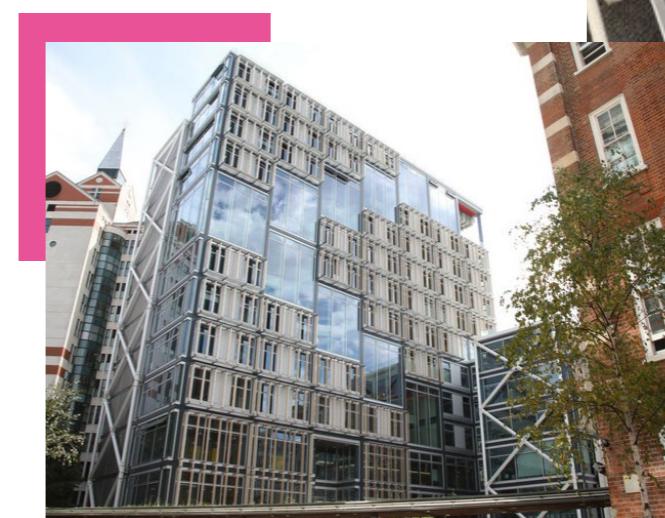

Abdulaziz Alhoshan
Prince Sultan University, Saudi Arabia

Making the most of our campus is all part of getting the best learning experience and an authentic taste of life in central London.

Work out with discounted LSE Gym membership, maximise your learning in fully equipped modern teaching spaces, and relax and meet with new friends in the student bars and cafés.

As an LSE student, you will have full access to our iconic library which offers excellent resources, long opening hours, and the perfect study environment.

Applying to Summer School

Entry requirements

Grades: Minimum recommended GPA 3.3/ B+

Prerequisites: 200 and 300 level courses will have conditions of entry. Please check online for details.

Is English your second language?

Applicants need to be proficient in the use of English. If you have had previous university level instruction in English, or live in a country where English is a main language, you need not submit a proficiency certificate. Otherwise you will need:

Certificate Required Score

TOEFL (internet based) 107 or above (including 25 in each component)

IELTS 7.0 or above (including 7 in all components)

CAE With grade B or better or 185 points overall and a minimum of 185 points in each individual component

For details of other accepted certificates, please visit: lse.ac.uk/summer-school

Preparatory English courses will take place in the week prior to each session and are tailored specifically for international students studying at Summer School. Please note that these courses may be delivered wholly online for 2022.

Application and fees

How to apply: Apply online. Popular courses and LSE Residences do fill up quickly, so we recommend that you apply as soon as possible.

How to support your application: You will be asked to provide a copy of your university transcript (if available). If English is not your first language you should include appropriate evidence of English proficiency.

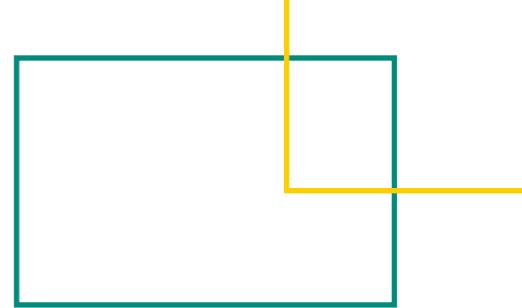

Students taking more than one course will be eligible for discounted rates as outlined below:

Fees: Check online for latest fees at lse.ac.uk/summer-school

*Student rate applies to full-time students who are currently enrolled at a University or College anywhere in the world.

A £50 application fee must be paid when submitting your application.

Please see lse.ac.uk/summer-school for full tuition fees and terms and conditions.

Programme delivery

Duration: Three weeks (six or nine weeks if attending two or three sessions).

Teaching time: A minimum of 54 hours; Lectures: 36 hours; Classes: 18 hours. (Some courses vary). Recommended self-study: 2-3 hours per day.

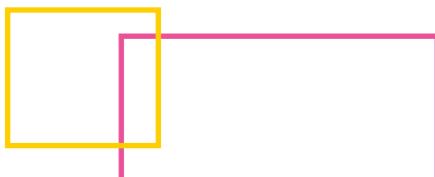

Credit and assessment

Credit: Generally courses receive three or four credits in the US system, or 7.5 ECTS in the European system. Please check with your home institution.

Assessment: Two written exams, or a final exam and assessed work.*

Course equivalence: Each course is broadly equivalent to one semester from an undergraduate degree.

* Examinations are not compulsory, but they are encouraged and may be necessary for students requiring credit.

For course details and fees visit:
lse.ac.uk/summer-school and join our mailing list for updates.

Cancellation of courses

Occasionally it is necessary to cancel or postpone courses. Should a course be subject to a major change, applicants will be offered the option to either transfer to another course or receive a full refund. Any alterations to the programme will be made by the first week of June 2022. If you are coming from abroad, you are strongly advised to take out comprehensive travel insurance for the duration of your stay.

Equality and diversity

To uphold the School's commitment to equality of respect and opportunity, as set out in the Ethics Code (search 'Ethics Code' on the LSE homepage), we will treat all people with dignity and respect, and ensure that no-one will be treated less favourably because of their role at the School, age, disability, gender (including gender identity), race, religion or belief sexual orientation, marriage and civil partnership, pregnancy and maternity and social and economic background. For details of the School's work on enhancing its equality practices to reflect the requirements of the Equality Act 2010, please see the EDI website (search 'EDI Policy Statement' on the LSE homepage).

Academic Director's Scholarships

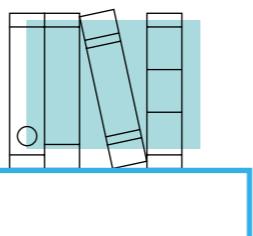

The Academic Director's Scholarships support LSE's 2030 Vision and its guiding principles to deliver excellence through an inclusive and diverse community, extend our impact and ensure a sustainable future.

A number of Summer School scholarships are available on select courses to applicants in full-time education who can demonstrate their passion and exceptional promise in:

- Responsible Leadership
- Sustainability and Development
- Technology, Media and Society

Please check our website for the list of courses within the scholarship.

Offer holders will be invited to apply for the scholarship with a short statement of purpose. Only current university students or those who have accepted an offer to attend university in 2022/2023 are eligible. The scholarship covers student rate tuition fees, with other costs to be met by the recipient.

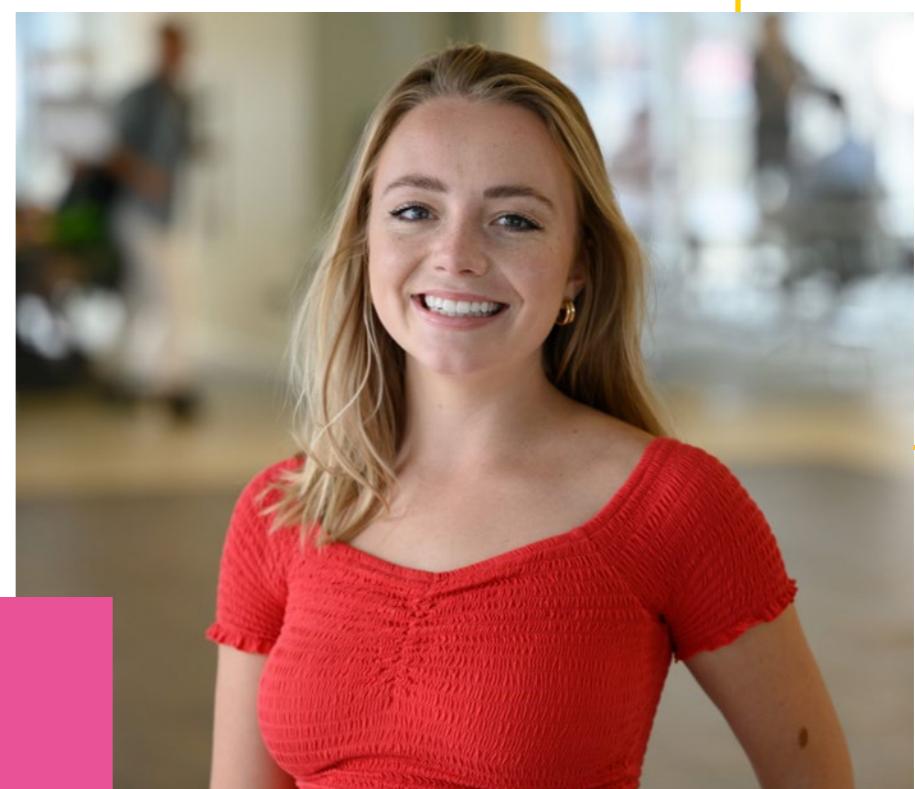

"My experience on The Wealth (and Poverty) of Nations course has given me a valuable framework and appreciation for how I think about the accumulation of wealth and how I might be able to contribute in my career to a more equitable future."

Leah March

St John's College, USA

Awarded an Academic Director's Scholarship in the category of Sustainability and Development.
